

EXCAVATE AND LIFT WITH ADVANCED MOBILITY

Flemming Golf constructs some of Australia's leading golf courses. Their latest project is the new Greg Norman designed course at Sydney's Stonecutters Ridge residential and golf development.

Winding through the development, the 18 hole championship golf course has been designed to be ranked in Australia's Top 100. The 6,247 metre, par 71 course is situated in the rolling topography of the site.

The course landscape includes wetlands and will reflect the characteristics of its natural surrounds with three distinct themes, each complementing the overall development.

Kirk Flemming who is managing the golf course construction, said their Takeuchi TB175W has the mobility needed to travel at up to 20 kilometres per hour over the hundred acre site in far less time than a crawler machine.

He said this gives them the flexibility to cover the entire jobsite, switching from tee to green in minutes. "Its JB Powertilting Hydraulic Hitch, coupled with the very smooth and precise controls make shaping much easier...which is an essential function in order to create the detailed contours that architects design into modern today's golf courses", he said .

"In addition, it has some other really useful features like a double articulation boom that allows the operator to work right in close to the machine. It can be set to operate independently or proportionately as required, plus it offers extended reach over the standard boom and better balance when stowed for travel", Kirk said.

Greg Norman said, "I'm delighted to announce the Stage 1 launch of Medallist's first Sydney project, Stonecutters Ridge. The response to the project has been excellent so far.

We have successfully realised our aim to design a facilities focused lifestyle community with Northwest Sydney's only world-class 18 hole golf course.

It's been a pleasure to be involved and I look forward to playing an ongoing role in its development as Stonecutters Ridge unfolds over the coming years."
